1. Background:

The textile industry has historically been one of the most significant sectors of the Indian economy, contributing substantially to employment, industrial output, and export earnings. In the post-independence period, the Government of India recognized the need for a statutory mechanism to ensure quality control, standardization, and systematic development of textile products, particularly to strengthen India's position in international markets.

In this context, the Textiles Committee Act, 1963 was enacted to establish the Textiles Committee as a statutory body under the administrative control of the Ministry of Textiles. The Act empowered the Committee to prescribe quality standards, conduct inspections, levy cess and promote research & development within the textile sector. Over time, various Rules and Regulations were framed to operationalize the provisions of the Act and streamline its administrative and regulatory functions.

However, with globalization, technological advancements, liberalization of trade policies, and evolving compliance requirements and afflux of time, the regulatory environment governing the textile industry has undergone significant changes. These developments necessitate a comprehensive review of the Act and its subordinate legislation to assess their continued relevance, effectiveness, and alignment with contemporary industry needs.

2. About Textiles Committee

The Textiles Committee is a statutory body under the administrative control of the Ministry of Textiles, Govt. of India constituted by the Textiles Committee Act 1963 with an aim to ensure quality of textiles and textile machinery for domestic and international market. As a part of the mandate, the organization has been undertaking host of activities for the development of the Textile & Apparel (T&A) industry of the country. Some of the activities mandated to the organization as per the act are (1) Undertake, assist and encourage scientific, technological and economic research in textile industry including machinery (2) Promote export of textiles and textile machinery and carry on propaganda for that purpose (3) establish, adopt or recognize standards for textile and its packaging materials. For the purpose of export and internal consumption affix suitable marks on such standardized textiles (4) Establish laboratories and test houses for the testing of textiles and (5) Collect statistics across the Textile Value Chain (TVC).

In the post liberalisation era, the Textiles Committee has reoriented its role from being a regulatory body to become a facilitator of growth through various interventions. As a facilitator for growth of the sector, the committee renders valuable services to the textile trade and industry through a network of regional offices situated in the major textile manufacturing /export centres of the country with its Head Office at Mumbai.

As a part of re-orienting its activities, the Textiles Committee has also been undertaking extensive research on issues relating to globalization, international trade, issues relating to WTO, Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) Protections of unique textiles & handicrafts through GI, in addition to dedicated activities of Market Intelligence in Textiles (MIT) for trade & competitiveness analyses. Keeping the changes in global trade in textiles and importance of the sector to the Indian economy in mind, the TC has also been working on emerging areas like Textile Economic Research (TER), Trade Related Capacity Building (TRCB) of stakeholders, training, Non Tariff Barriers (NTBs), etc. The TC has also been working with various state governments for the development of textile industry in the respective states on various issues like IPR protection on unique textiles & handicrafts through Geographical Indications (GI) Act, 1999, formulation of state specific policies, etc.

3. Objective of the Study

The objective of this study is to examine and comprehensive review the provisions of the Textiles Committee Act, 1963 along with its Rules and Regulations, in order to assess their scope, effectiveness, and contemporary relevance. The study seeks to analyze the powers, sub delegations and functions prescribed under the Act, evaluate its role in regulating and promoting quality standards in the textile sector, and identify areas requiring reform in light of present-day industry and policy developments. It also aims to identify gaps, overlaps, or outdated provisions and suggest the need for reforms to ensure that the regulatory framework remains aligned with current industry practices and policy objectives.
